

AnuRupa Matrimony is a private matchmaking platform for Anupama Reddy. It holds your profile book, lets you search it on behalf of a named client, and share a curated shortlist with that client over WhatsApp — then tells you what they opened and which profiles they liked.

There are two sides to the platform. The admin side is yours and is password protected. The client side is what families see: a share link you send them, or the public browse page. Clients never see your internal notes, finances or tags.

1 Signing in

Go to /admin. You will be asked for the admin password. There is one admin account; the session lasts 12 hours, after which you sign in again.

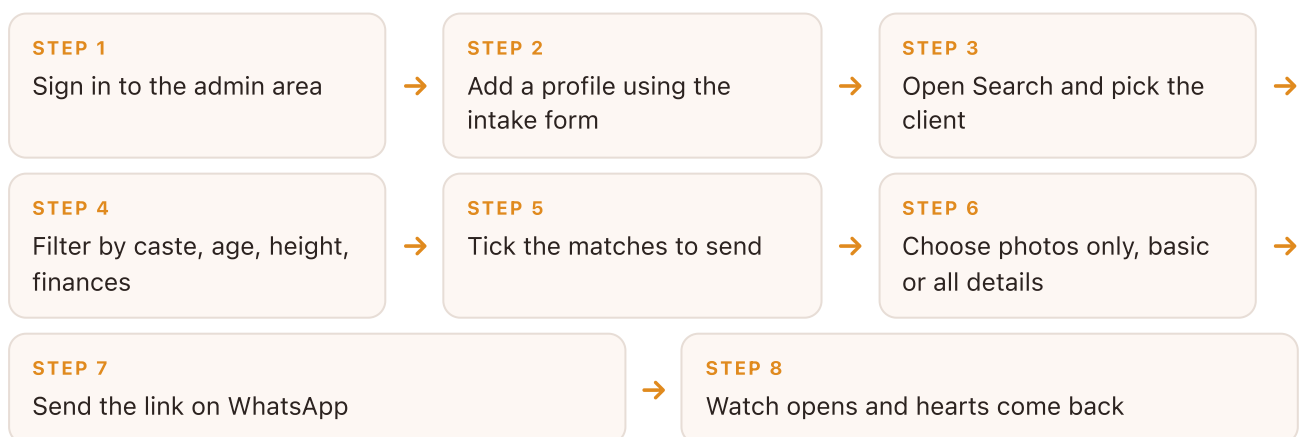

The sign-in screen.

2 How it works, by person

Three different people touch the platform, and each sees a different slice of it. These are the paths they take.

Anupama — the consultant

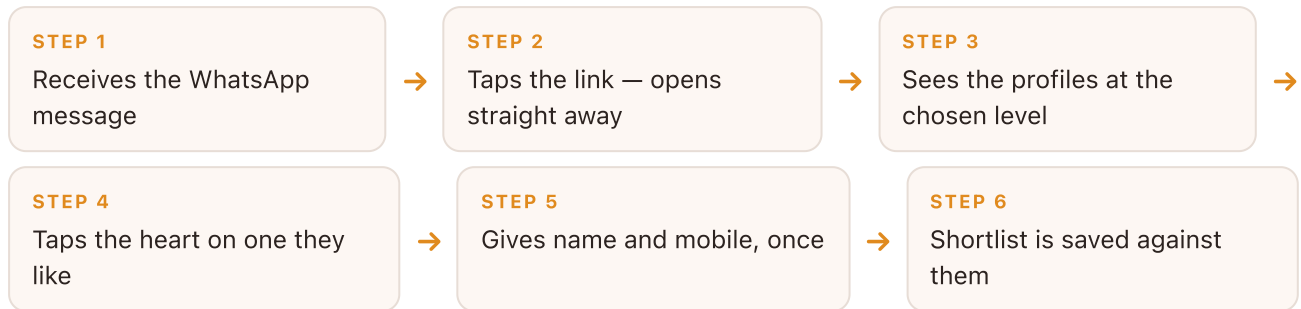

Signs in with the admin password. Sees everything.

Already-sent profiles are greyed out on the next search for that client, so the same profile is never sent twice.

A family receiving a WhatsApp link

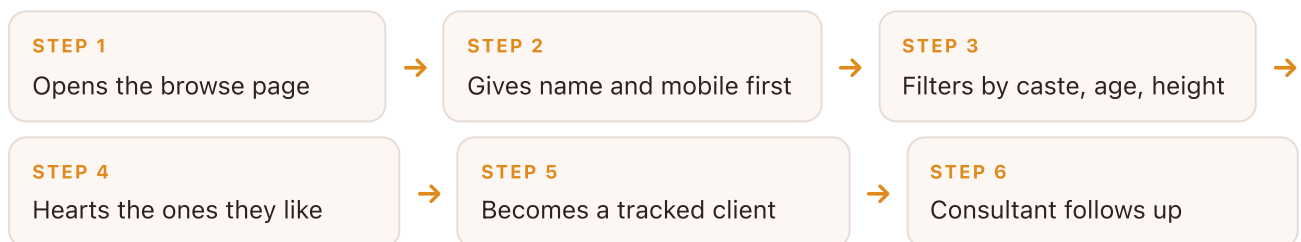

No login, no app. They see only what the chosen share level allows.

Viewing needs nothing. Shortlisting asks for a name and mobile number the first time, because a link often gets forwarded within a family and we want to know who actually liked the profile. After that, hearts work in one tap.

A walk-in using the public browse page

Someone sent to the browse page rather than a specific shortlist.

Nothing is visible until they identify themselves, so anonymous browsing is not possible and every search they run is recorded against them.

They all converge on one client record. Whichever route someone arrives by, they are matched on phone number. A walk-in who browses today and receives a WhatsApp shortlist next week is one client with one history — not two.

3 The home screen

After signing in you land on four sections. There is no menu bar to hunt through — everything starts here.

- New Profile — add a bride or groom using the full intake form.
- Search — search the book on behalf of a client and share a shortlist.
- All Profiles — browse and edit everything on the books.
- Dashboard — who you contacted recently and who has gone quiet.

Clients and Share Links sit underneath as secondary links.

4 Adding a profile

The form follows your own intake sheet, section by section, so you can work straight down a filled paper form without jumping around.

SECTION	WHAT GOES IN IT
Personal	Gender (boy/girl), name, surname, date / time / place of birth, rasi, nakshatram, gotram, caste, sub-caste, height, religion, mother tongue, city, state
Education	Degree, university, school
Professional	Job, business, company, salary, citizenship, finances (annual, used by the search filter)
Family	Father and mother name, details and native place; siblings name, count and details; current address; family background notes
Contact	Primary contact, middlemen contact, email
Requirements	Requirements text, marital status, manglik, diet, horoscope notes
Internal	Tag (AM / AMP / AMO), net worth notes, private notes, active toggle

Only Name is mandatory. Everything else can be filled in later, so you can create a profile from a phone call and complete it when the family sends details.

Three ways to add photos, so you are never stuck:

- Click Choose photos and pick files.
- Drag images from Finder straight onto the dotted box.
- Copy an image anywhere and press ⌘V on the page.

The first photo becomes the cover. After saving you can reorder them, set a different cover, or delete — on a phone those controls are always visible; on a desktop they appear when you hover.

Pick an existing client or add a new one before searching.

Then filter the book. The filters match your search sheet: name, who you are looking for, caste, tag, and more-than / less-than ranges for age, height and finances.

Results deliberately show only the five things you need to judge a match at a glance:

- Name · Date of birth (and age) · Height · Caste · Requirements

Use View / edit all details on any result to open the complete record.

Already shared profiles go grey. Anything you have previously sent this client is dimmed and badged Already shared, so you do not send the same profile twice. Anything they hearted is badged Liked.

Search results. Grey cards were already sent to this client; "Liked" means they hearted it.

7 Sharing profiles

Tick the profiles you want — or Select all — and press Share. One link covers everything selected, so a family gets a single WhatsApp message rather than ten.

Choose how much the client sees:

LEVEL	WHAT THE CLIENT SEES
Photos only	Name and the photo gallery. Nothing else.
Basic details	Name (no surname), date / time / place of birth, height, job, business, native place, photos.
All details	Everything above plus surname, caste, education, family, horoscope, requirements and contact.

Set how many days the link stays alive, add an optional label, and generate. You then get a Copy link button and a Share on WhatsApp button that opens WhatsApp with the message and link already written, addressed to the client by name.

Finances, marital status and the tag are never shared — not even on "All details". They stay on your side only.

8 What the client sees

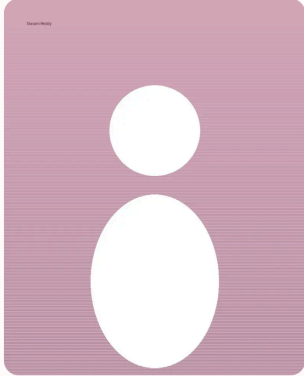

The client opens the link on their phone. No login, no app. They see the profiles you chose, at the level you chose, and a heart on each one.

The first time they tap a heart they are asked for their name and mobile number. A link is often forwarded within a family, so this records who actually liked the profile rather than assuming it was the person you sent it to. Once given, every further heart is a single tap.

They are matched to your client book by phone number, so if you already have them as a client the shortlist lands on that same record.

Tap the heart on any profile you would like to take forward.

A shared link as the client sees it, with a heart on each profile.

9 Public browsing

If you point someone at the public browse page, they are asked for a name and phone number before any profile is shown. That creates (or matches) a client record, so their filters and likes are attributed just like a shared link.

Before you begin
Tell us who you are so we can keep track of the profiles you like.

Three questions, answered on one screen:

- No response in 30+ days — contacted over a month ago and silent since. Worth a call.
- Never opened a link — you sent profiles and they never looked.

"Responded" means they opened a link or hearted a profile. Someone messaged yesterday is not flagged as quiet — the 30-day clock only counts once a month has actually passed.
